THURSDAY MORNING, OCT. 26.

PROTECTION vs. FREE TRADE.

The Globe of the 21st contains a well written article, entitled "Protection and its Advantages," the main drift of which is that the agriculturist in the United States is taxed for the benefit of the manufacturer without receiving any compensation for the same, and they say this.

As the producer of commodities, the prices of which are, in point of fact, regulated by the supply and demand of the European markets, the Canadian stands on precisely the same footing as the United States agriculturist. There is not one article of manufacture which is not a product of the Canadian market, and those of the other side of the boundary line.

The Globe then quotes from an American Free Trade publication a funny but very stale campaign statement of the articles necessary to the comfort of the farmer, and for which he is taxed largely. On the whole, the organ makes a very ingenious defence of Free Trade, and one doubtless that will delude many of its readers, as they have been deluded in like manner before. But the trouble with the Globe's position is that it only presents one side of the question. All that it states to the advantage of the manufacturer is true enough, but why deny or fail to state the advantages also according to the Protected agriculturist?

In giving the tax upon the farmer for woolen, iron and leather manufactures, which about cover the list referred to so facetiously by the American authority quoted by the Globe, why did not the Free Trade organ add the long list of necessities produced by the agriculturist, and for which the manufacturer is taxed proportionately to the indirect levy upon the productions of the latter? Why is it silent regarding the Protection afforded the American farmer upon cotton, sugar, wool, tobacco, hemp, corn, wheat, cattle, horses, etc., etc.? Why does it not tell its readers that the Protection which the American husbandman receives not only prevents the Canadian farmer from competing with him in his own market, but the absence of Protection to the Canadian agriculturist enables his American neighbor to cross the line and undersell him at home?

Why does not the Globe say a word about the immense wheat region of the Saskatchewan valley—Manitoba—which should, and doubtless will be, under the fostering care of an able Government on the globe, it is reasonable to suppose that it would be as rapidly occupied as the country adjacent. Why give comparative tables, which superficially considered, look so promising for the Free Trader, but when clearly understood and explained, put a totally different face upon the matter? No one disputes the Free Trade doctrine if it be unconfined and universal; but when a nation like the American—separated from us only by an imaginary line—not an ocean or a continent—is allowed the freedom of our markets, while we are effectively shut out from theirs, we submit to any candid mind that common sense alone, to say nothing of experience, should decide the question as to with whom the advantage lies. Free Trade means with us Reciprocity. The Americans will have none of it. Therefore, in defense of their dear interests—as a common means of self-preservation—what else should Canadians do but apply the same principle to their neighbors that their neighbors apply to them? Among themselves, the Americans of each section are taxed reciprocally; then why not observe the same rule among nations? If we cannot have reciprocity in trade, which is Free Trade, let us have reciprocity in tariffs, which is Protection. Mutuality—equality—is what we are after. This gained, let "every tub stand on its own bottom."

ASKING TOO MUCH.

A Ministerial organ, the St. John Telegraph, appeals to Mr. Speaker for his sense of "honor" and asks him to demand that he violated the India $8,000 contract.

It is more of a principle with those of us to hold on to their comfortable positions than to respect the conditions upon which the same are assumed. The Speaker can justly claim that he is no worse than his colleagues; therefore he is right in refusing to be sacrificed alone. If he is to resign, so also should the Premier, Vail and Huntington, of the Cabinet; and Brown, Simpson and other Senators, etc., etc. In fact, if all the leaders of the party of purity are to be brought to bar for their conduct in office, and thus compelled to resign, we should have the spectacle of a political monstrosity without a head. No, no. Mr. Anglin will not vacate his birth unless forced to do so; neither will his confidants.

The corrupt practices of the present Government will never be voluntarily abandoned by the members thereof, and it is nonsense to expect it. The only remedy for the people is to have a new deal—a return to power of Sir John—and the day is not distant when, under his happy guidance, Canada will be again blessed with honest government and general prosperity.

TOO "RANK" BY FAR.

The Montreal Witness still seems subject to an attack of nausea at the mention of the name of him who "smells to Heaven." During the recent discussion as to who should be Mr. Laird's successor, the Government threw out several feelers in order to ascertain who would be the least obnoxious to the country, and among the number Mons. Cauchon's name was mentioned. Hence the attack of nausea, for we find the Witness very energetically protesting against any promotion for him who "preyed upon the most helpless of God's creatures," lest an opportunity should be thereby afforded him of repeating the rascality that made him "stink" in the nostrils of the Globe and Herald at the time. Doubtless it finds that apologizing for his present position—comparatively harmless as it is—does enough for any decent journal to call upon the larger dose of ink to be taken by a Department.

The selection of David M. Philosopher, the man of "logical eccentricities," as Mr. Laird's successor in the Cabinet, is received very quietly by the Globe, and we presume it will not create much of a ripple on the political sea, any way, as for the short lease the Globe yet have of power, the personnel of the Ministry cannot matter much to the country. The new Privy Councillor, with his extreme Free Trade views, will serve to make the Cabinet more pronounced upon that issue, and as that is the rock upon which the present Government must founder—leaving out of sight its repeated violations of pledges made in opposition—his accession to the vacancy will only serve to make the defeat of Mackenzie and his associates more complete. On this question the Globe can find no fault with his eccentricities, however much it may dislike him otherwise.

The unfairness of the Globe is made apparent by accusing the Protectionists of uttering such fallacies as this:

It is mere delusion to assume that Protection to one class means high prices to another class.

Protectionists would Protect each class so far as it may be possible to do so. And herein is the difference between the Globe and the Conservatives. Mackenzie was only too anxious to Protect the oil interests by imposing an excessive duty on the imported article, not because it was a simple matter of justice to Canadian oil refiners, but because he was personally interested in its manufacture, himself. If the fact were otherwise, why does he favor Free Trade in everything else, or why does he not advocate Protection for all of our industries? If Protection is necessary to the prosperity and permanency of the oil business of the Dominion, why is it not also as necessary to the other manufactures and the agricultural interests of the country? The language of the Globe, above quoted, can only apply to Mr. Mackenzie and his colleagues—certainly not to the Protectionists.

Henry Ward Beecher, having returned home from his recent lecturing tour through a portion of Canada, is giving his impressions of the country in a series of articles in his paper, the Christian Union. This is what he says:

We have come back from our brief visit—it included Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, and London—with a feeling of admiration for the country and love for the warm-hearted and hospitable people. There is a fair and open which the sun shines upon that part of Canada through which we travelled.

It is simply wonderful. All along the banks of the St. Lawrence, from Toronto to the western part of the Dominion, it is one vast succession of admirable grounds for agriculture, cultivation and improvement. While in London, we were struck by the agricultural exhibition which was in progress there, and it heightened our impression of this great farming country north of us.

He makes the following very sensible advice from Ottawa, Oct. 22d: "It is to the two nations, and that Canada must merge with us. We think so no longer."

These evidences of the pecuniary success of our neighbors we are glad to chronicle, not only out of personal regard for the publishers themselves, but because it affords the strongest possible proof that Canadians are a reading people, and fully alive to the great importance of giving an ungrudging and hearty support to their local press. The newspaper is a reflex of the enterprise or apathy of the town in which it is printed. If its contents are newsy and freshly gotten up, and the paper, typographically considered, of respectable mein, the distant reader can feel assured that it is published in an intelligent, thriving community, where it is well appreciated and abundantly supported. If, on the contrary, its columns are "stale, flat and unprofitable," and its appearance dingy and sickly, it is just as certain that it fully represents the demands of the place in which its feeble light sheds its flickering rays, and that a better paper would fail of support. In this age of progress, a place possessing the ordinary elements of prosperity, and yet unrepresented by an active agent in the shape of a good journal, would certainly be an anomaly, and could not hope to do more than plod along in the old "ruts," without improvements of any kind. The newspaper is truly "a map of busy life, its fluctuations and vast concerns." It is as necessary to the growth and permanency of a town, as vitality to the human organization. Through its agency, capital and population are attracted to its vicinity, and its efforts in that respect are most important.

A Conservative Club, similar to the one which has been organized in the Standard office, manufacturers intend House rents are about 30 per cent. cheaper in Toronto than they were two years ago: real estate about the same.

The government of the Northwest Territory now costs $16,000 a year; under the Macdonald ministry it cost $2,300.

A fire in Brantford on the 17th destroyed Woods & Lyons' carriage factory and other buildings. Loss, $10,000; insurance, $7,000.

Mr. Ronald Macdonald, of Lancaster, recently shipped about 4,000 pounds of butter to Montreal en route for England. He paid 10c. per pound.

It is said that Mr. A. Mathieson, of the Stratford Beacon, proposes starting a daily paper about the first of January. It will be called the News.

A telegram from Belleville says that a party of American miners are mining for gold on the fourth concession of Kaladar, and meeting with good success.

A burglar's nest was broken up in Toronto on the 21st by the capture of six men, named James and Richard Kennedy, Wm. and Jno. Blair, Thos.

creatures," lest an opportunity should be thereby afforded him of repeating the rascality that made him "stink" in the nostrils of the Globe and Herald at the time. Doubtless it finds that apologizing for his present position—comparatively harmless as it is—does enough for any decent journal to call upon the larger dose of ink to be taken by a Department.

The New York Sun says—"Decidedly the best show taking into consideration variety, quality, number, and taste, is from the Standard. The region where the first exhibit in the Standard is the northern shores of Lake Ontario, Niagara river, and of Lake Erie; and receiving the influence of southwesterly winds from over those waters it has a 'water cell' peculiarly favorable to fruit."

A country has been discovered by some paragraphist which should bring joy to the hearts of the leaders of the "Woman's Movement" of America—a sort of Utopia, in fact, for the admirers of Lucy Stone, Anna Dickinson, etc., who, it is to be hoped, will migrate thither forthwith. The following gives the information desired:

In the Government of Tamboroff, in Russia, a peculiar religious sect, which has for some time existed in Siberia, is making many proselytes. Its leading doctrine is that all men are to be equal, but that the husband must be subject to the wife, and recognize her as the head of the family; he must at least once a week confess his sins to his wife. In other respects the members of this sect are orthodox (Greek), and attend the Russian church. They call themselves "Puritans."

The unfairness of the Globe is made apparent by accusing the Protectionists of uttering such fallacies as this:

It is mere delusion to assume that Protection to one class means high prices to another class.

Protectionists would Protect each class so far as it may be possible to do so. And herein is the difference between the Globe and the Conservatives. Mackenzie was only too anxious to Protect the oil interests by imposing an excessive duty on the imported article, not because it was a simple matter of justice to Canadian oil refiners, but because he was personally interested in its manufacture, himself. The language of the Globe, above quoted, can only apply to Mr. Mackenzie and his colleagues—certainly not to the Protectionists.

In this the Globe is right.

The Young Ladies' Journal, for November, has been placed on our table by Mr. Wright, of the "Windsor Book-store." Its numerous elegant fashion plates and designs in colors alone make it worth more to the ladies than any other publication we have yet seen, while its literary contents are far above the average. No family should be without this valuable and interesting magazine. Don't forget that it may be had at Wright's, where all the latest and best periodicals are always kept for sale.

The London Free Press speaks of a new target, which we think will command itself. Our contemporary says: "The system of signaling places the score beyond a question, and no misunderstanding can possibly arise. The marker, instead of straining his eyes to see where the shot strikes, and of being continually in dread of splinters and leaden spray, sits perfectly at his ease, and registers each shot without a 'peradventure.' The cost of this target has been so cheapened as to bring it into general use. Information remains.

The Mersea Tragedy.

On Monday, we called upon James Belcher, who is now in Sandwich jail, awaiting his trial for the shooting of Daniel Kenyon, in the Township of Mersea. We found him in good health, and extraordinary to say, so far as we could see, in good spirits. In our opinion, from conversation with him respecting the terrible tragedy in which he played a prominent part, he does not seem to realize or think for a moment that he committed murder. In addition to the statement which he published in the Record last week, he has supplied us with the following additional particulars, which we willingly publish:

I will now refer to the locality where I lived. I worked with diligence and perseverance to try to make a living in the swamps of Essex. My former attention to stock raising, combined with my love of the country, and my desire to obtain to me a home of independence. All of my property and anticipations pointed to my being a prominent farmer in a few years. My hopes were soon blighted by the bad intelligence that the land I worked on was not my own. I sold my business and my home, and, in company with others, went to the United States, having a spent a very pleasant and, we hope, profitable evening.

At the time of the shooting of this company, he was called upon to encourage, by his words, the members of this company. He (Mr. Girardot) was seconded only to that of a minister, and far ahead of every other occupation. He was proud of filling the position that he did, to night, after a life of toil, and was more than compensated for all the efforts and self-sacrifice that he put forth in the cause of education, in witnessing that the fruits of his education were not appreciated.
